With porcelain as its central material, Mie Kongo's work employs a range of materials including metal, felt, wood, glass, and plastics. Through playful yet structured experimentation she strives to create sculptural compositions that bring these elements into balance, sometimes precariously but always perfectly. She is a Chicago-based artist and educator whose work has been exhibited nationally and internationally.

Harper College has an active studio art faculty. In addition to teaching, they are dedicated to making and exhibiting their own work. Collectively, they represent a wide range of concept and material approaches. This biennial exhibition provides an important opportunity for art faculty members to share their work with students, colleagues, and the community.
